

Carolyn's Flower Drawings

My friend Carolyn grew up on the mountain. She lived in a rambling old garden with horse paddocks. She would get lost in there for days, exploring all the nooks and crannies, avenues and secret spaces....

Now she loves to draw the flowers from her ancient garden.

These are her pencils, she uses these ones for their colours, because you can see the woodgrain and because she can sharpen them like no others.

The flowers are build up from layers and layers of many colours.
